Classification 	All cultures have categories to distinguish people into “us” and “them.” In a genocide, victims are targeted because of their national, ethnic, racial, or religious identities. Classification does not necessarily lead to genocide, but without it, genocide is impossible.	German composer, Richard _____ wrote the opera, Der Ring des _____ where he made it clear that the underground creatures were _____ who fought the Aryans for power.
Symbolization 	Perpetrators use symbols to identify and target groups of people. Symbols include names and physical signs. Some are self-imposed, others are imposed by the perpetrators.	The Nazis marked Jews with the _____ of David to segregate and _____ Jews.
Discrimination 	A dominant group uses law, custom, and political power to deny the rights of weaker groups. Powerless groups are not granted full civil rights, voting rights, or even citizenship.	The _____ Laws legally defined Jews as a race. They formed the basis for legal _____ against Jews.
Dehumanization 	One group denies the humanity of another group. Members of this group are categorized as subhuman. This overcomes the normal human revulsion to murder.	The children’s book, Der _____ (The Poisonous Mushroom), depicts Jews as poisonous mushrooms poisoning German society.
Organization 	Genocide is usually organized by the state. The government uses militias to provide deniability of state responsibility. Sometimes the organization is informal. Special training is given to murderous militias and army killing units.	The Nazi regime organized its own special _____ call Schutzstaffel (SS). It was used to _____ Jews and _____ opposition to Nazi rule.
