What an incredible evening! More than 1,000 joined us in person and virtually as we came together to pay tribute to our local Holocaust Survivors and to honor Dallas Mavericks CEO Cynt Marshall.

The spirit of hope for humanity is nowhere more visible than in the lives of our Holocaust Survivors. Having lived through unimaginable atrocities, they are beacons of kindness, faith, and strength.

At the Museum, we inspire Upstander behavior by telling the stories of individuals who see something wrong and work to make it right. The Kindertransport was such an example. At the event, we were proud to debut an original Museum-produced film sharing a story of the Kindertransport told through the personal testimonies of siblings Magie Romberg Furst and Bert Romberg, who were with us in attendance.

It was a privilege to honor Cynt Marshall - a history-maker as the first Black female CEO of an NBA team and a trailblazer for creating and sustaining an inclusive, diverse corporate culture. Throughout her career, she has embodied and promoted transparency and trust, and at the Mavericks organization, she created a workplace promise that "Every voice matters and everybody belongs." Her remarks left us speechless and inspired. Thank you, Cynt, for all that you do to make our community and this world a more welcoming place!

We extend our gratitude to Event Chairs Cristina Barbosa and Michael Young. Along with the Honorary and Host Committees, they worked passionately to ensure a successful event - and it was! We are excited to share that this year's event raised nearly $1.2 million in support of the Museum's mission to teach the history of the Holocaust and advance human rights to combat prejudice, hatred, and indifference. At a time when fact-based education is more important than ever, your generous support affords us the ability to continue our year-round work, including the ability to provide educators with crucial resources to teach difficult subjects in age-appropriate manners. We are grateful and humbled by your support. Together, we inspire Upstanders.
